Press Release

After all the calamities of the last year, all of the false certainties, and the repeated drops of the other shoe- it feels like the only assertions one can make are declarations of unknowing. And somehow unknowing seems natural to paintings, despite their physical material right there-ness. In the studio, I try to resist the too-easy ones and push them around until I'm less sure of them, until they seem sure only of their own contradictions, until they hold together, yes, but not too securely.
